Anti-gay flyers violated hate law: Top court

Whatcott case. But man who distributed leaflets referring to gay men as pedophiles says ruling won't stop him

A Saskatchewan anti-gay crusader says he'll ignore a Supreme Court of Canada ruling that he violated human-rights rules when he distributed pamphlets denouncing homosexuals.

In a 6-0 decision Wednesday, the high court found two of the four flyers distributed by William Whatcott violated Saskatchewan's Human Rights Code.

Those flyers referred to gay men as sodomites and pedophiles.

But the court struck down some language in the provincial code, clearing Whatcott of any wrongdoing in connection with two other flyers.

Whatcott dismissed the ruling, insisting he won't stop distributing material expressing his religious views.

"I believe God has called me to speak on these moral issues," Whatcott told The Canadian Press.

"So looking at it from that perspective. I'll likely put out another flyer articulating the Judeo-Christian viewpoint on homosexuality in my usual blunt and forthright manner."

Whatcott produced and distributed leaflets in 2000 and 2001 that contained inflammatory statements about gay men, prompting complaints to the Saskatchewan Human Rights Commission.

A tribunal ruled that Whatcott violated the province's human-rights code — but that finding was overturned by the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal.

The commission appealed to the Supreme Court, arguing that Whatcott's flyers essentially asserted that gays and lesbians are less than human, exposing them to discrimination.

The high court agreed with respect to two of the flyers, saying they constituted hate-speech under the code.

"The tribunal's conclusions with respect to (the two flyers) were reasonable," Justice Marshall Rothstein wrote on behalf of the court. "Passages of (the flyers) combine many of the hallmarks of hatred identified in the case law."

The vilifying and derogatory representations used in the flyers created a "tone" of hatred against homosexuals, said Rothstein.

"It delegitimizes homosexuals by referring to them as filthy or dirty sex addicts and by comparing them to pedophiles, a traditionally reviled group in society," he wrote.

However, in its ruling on Wednesday, the Supreme Court struck down a portion of the Saskatchewan charter.

It found that language in the code that defines hate literature as something that "ridicules, belittles or otherwise affronts the dignity of any person" is unconstitutional.

Inspiring change. Stars deliver strong message to Saskatchewan youth

Saskatchewan's first We Day celebration was a success, with thousands of students and supporters crowding Saskatoon's Credit Union Centre to promote change.

2013 was the first year Free the Children brought the event to the province, and as for the celebrities involved, they said the event was an important one for them and for the future.

One of the many speakers to take the stage at Credit Union Centre in front of roughly 15,000 young people and supporters in Saskatoon was actress and activist Mia Farrow. She said she hopes young people take the energy she saw at We Day Saskatchewan into the world.

"Hang onto the feeling that brought you to this room," said Farrow.

She continued: "Don't let older people tell you you're too young. You can do a lot right now.... You're looking at a lot of apathy and you're going to feel hopeless and you're going to feel helpless. Discard those things; they are the enemies of all meaningful progress."

Alongside Farrow was Golden Globe Award–winning actor Martin Sheen, who is well known for his environmental activism. He said the event, which encourages young people to instigate positive social change around the world, is crucial.

"I'm always impressed with the opportunity that We Day presents to young people because it's really a celebration of challenging peer pressure," said Sheen. "These kids have stood up, spoken out and stepped up to help heal the world in a lot of deeply personal ways and I'm just honored to be a part of it."

Wall to promote green initiatives in U.S.

Premier Brad Wall says he's going to Washington next week to not only urge U.S. lawmakers to approve the Keystone XL pipeline, but also to highlight green initiatives taking place in his province.

"We need to tell that story," Wall said Wednesday after meeting in Edmonton with Alberta Premier Alison Redford.

He said Saskatchewan, like the U.S., is heavily reliant on coal-generated electricity, but said his province has invested $1.4 billion in a clean-coal project near Estevan.

"That's about $1,400 per man, woman and child," said Wall. "I'm not sure of another jurisdiction in North America that can make that claim."

Both premiers discussed strategy in what has become a full-court press to impress on lawmakers in the United States the importance of the Keystone and Canada's pledge to do what it can to combat climate change.

Clean oil

- Premier Redford has also emphasized that Alberta is doing its part to reduce the climate-changing greenhouse gases that result from carbon-intensive projects like the oilsands.
- She has stressed that Alberta is the only North American jurisdiction to tax heavy emitters.

"It's important for us to be co-ordinated," said Redford.

"The first thing we want to do is speak to what Canada's record has been."

Wall's trip to the U.S. capital comes on the heels of Redford's trip to Washington last weekend.

Redford met with 19 state governors to sell the message that the TransCanada Keystone line is good for both economies and will deliver a larger supply of reliable oil south of the border. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Corruption case. Former spy-agency watchdog wanted in fraud probe

The man once entrusted to keep an eye on Canada's spy agency is now wanted by police and extradition procedures are underway in the hope of bringing him back to face criminal charges in this country.

An arrest warrant is out for Arthur Porter, the former head of the CSIS watchdog agency, for alleged fraud in one of the country's most expensive infrastructure projects.

He is among the five people named in arrest warrants issued Wednesday by Quebec's anti-corruption squad, in the case of the $1.3-billion construction of a Montreal mega-hospital.

The others are: Former SNC Lavalin senior executives Pierre Duhaime and Riadh Ben Aissa, Yanai Elbaz, and Jeremy Morris, the administrator of a Bahamas-based investment company.

The accused face a total of 24 charges — including fraud, breach of trust and document forgery. They say Porter and Elbaz are wanted under suspicion of having accepted bribes from some of the others. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Driver sentenced to three years after fatal crash

Alberta. Judge says he went through difficult process to decide penalty after death of four teens

Brenden Holubowich walks with supporters as he makes his way to the courthouse for sentencing in the deaths of four high school football players, in Grande Prairie, Alta., on Tuesday. JASON FRANSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A man convicted after a crash that killed four high school football players from northern Alberta has been sentenced to three years in prison.

Brenden Holubowich will also be forbidden to drive for three years once he is released. Holubowich, 23, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving causing death and dangerous driving causing bodily harm.

Court of Queen's Bench Justice William Tilleman said determining a sentence for Holubowich may have been the most difficult thing he has ever done. Tilleman's eyes filled with tears as he told court he sympathized with the dead teens' relatives, who had suggested that a three-year sentence would not be enough. He also said he felt for Holubowich's family. Tilleman said he struggled with his decision and at one point considered a longer period behind bars.

But in the end, the judge said, the sentence jointly submitted by the Crown and defence was just and in keeping with similar cases.

Holubowich had been facing 16 charges, including impaired driving causing death and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. His pickup truck collided with a car carrying five members of the Warriors football team from Grande Prairie Composite High School in October 2011. Walter Borden-Wilkins and Tanner Hildebrand, both 15, and Matthew Deller and Vince Stover, both 16, were killed. Zach Judd, now 17, was pulled from the wreckage and spent several weeks in a coma.

Holubowich's mother, Teresa Bateman, read a statement outside court after the sentencing.

"We cannot imagine the loss or the grief that you've experienced and no matter how much we might pray, hope or wish that it isn't so, this tragedy can never be reversed and for this we are sorry," she said, her voice breaking. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NASA. New telescope can measure the speed of moving black holes

There's a new spin on supermassive black holes: They're incredibly fast, astronomers say.

It's long been suspected that gigantic black holes lurking in the heart of galaxies rotate faster and grow larger as they feast on gas, dust, stars and matter. But there hasn't been a reliable measurement of the spin rate of a black hole until now.

While black holes are difficult to detect, the region around them gives off telltale X-rays. Using NASA's newly launched NuStar telescope and the European Space Agency's workhorse XMM-Newton, an international team observed high-energy X-rays released by a supermassive black hole in the middle of a nearby galaxy. They calculated its spin at close to the speed of light — 670 million mph (1.08 billion kph).

This is the first "unambiguous measurement of the spin rate'' of a supermassive black hole, University of Maryland astronomer Christopher Reynolds, who had no role in the research, wrote in an accompanying editorial.

Speed of light

A supermassive black hole in a nearby galaxy is said to be travelling at 1.08 billion km/h.

Behemoth black holes — with masses millions to billions times that of the sun — are thought to reside in every galactic centre. They're extremely dense and possess such powerful gravitational tug that not even light can escape.

Scientists are able to pinpoint these monstrous objects from the streams of X-rays emitted during a feeding frenzy. Knowing how fast — or slow — supermassive black holes swirl can help shed light on their growth.

For several days last summer, the two telescopes simultaneously tracked an immense black hole in a spiral galaxy called NGC 1365. The galaxy was chosen because it was 60 million light years away — relatively close by astronomical standards. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American Civil Liberties Union has published details from a Michigan search warrant of all of the information police were able to extract from one woman's iPhone seized from her bedroom last September.

"Before the age of smartphones, it was impossible for police to gather this much private information about a person's communications, historical movements and private life during an arrest," ACLU principal technologist Chris Soghoian wrote.

The findings have strong resonance in Ontario, where the Court of Appeal on Feb. 20 declared police can search any cellphone if it is not password-protected. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Swiss to rethink gun laws after pistol rampage

U.S.-style shock.
Longtime employee dead after killing two with pistol at company in small town

Fears about U.S.-style mass gun killings gripped Switzerland on Wednesday after a longtime employee opened fire at a wood-processing company.

The shooting left three people dead, including the assailant, in the country's second multiple-fatality shooting in two months.

And it happened as the Swiss parliament prepares to consider tightening some aspects of the country's famously lax gun legislation.

The country has a long-standing tradition for men to keep their military rifles after completing compulsory military service.

Face of despair: Mauro Capozzo, CEO of the company where the shooting took place, reacts at a news conference Wednesday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This partly accounts for the high rate of gun ownership in the country, where some 2.3 million firearms are owned by a population of about eight million.

A referendum to tighten the laws was defeated at the ballot box in 2011.

On Wednesday, the 42-year-old Swiss male arrived at the premises of the company Kronospan, in the small town of Menznau. He drew a pistol and started firing, police said.

Seven people were wounded, six of them seriously.

Officials didn't immediately have further details on the weapon or how the assailant acquired it. They also did not know how the assailant was killed.

"A lot of things are unclear at this stage," said Ida Glanzmann-Hunkeler, a Christian Democrat lawmaker.

Glanzmann-Hunkeler said a proposal will be put before parliament in the coming weeks that would require greater exchange of information between the gun registries kept by Switzerland's 26 cantons.

Horror on New Zealand beach. Police fire at giant shark, but swimmer dies

Police fired gunshots at a monster shark on Wednesday in a desperate attempt to save a swimmer.

The four-metre shark "rolled over and disappeared," said police inspector Shawn Rutene. But the victim, award-winning television and short-film director Adam Strange, 46, didn't survive.

Pio Mose, who was fishing at the popular Muriwai Beach near Auckland, New Zealand, said he saw the swimmer struggle against the huge shark.

He yelled at the man to swim to the rocks, but it was too late.

"All of a sudden there was blood everywhere," Mose said. "I was shaking, scared, panicked."

Rutene said police went out in inflatable lifesaving boats and shot at the shark.

Government shark expert Clinton Duffy said New Zealand is a hot spot for great white sharks.

But other potentially lethal species also inhabit the waters, he said.

Pistorius mystery

Was this Oscar's secret — a herbal remedy laced with pig parts?

The substance found in the Blade Runner's bedroom after the shooting death of his girlfriend has been named.

Oscar Pistorius' representatives say it was Testis compositum — a herbal remedy for "muscle recovery."

A product called Testis compositum is also marketed as a sexual enhancer, good for lack of stamina.

Some online retailers advertise oral and injectable forms as testosterone boosters and say it can aid sexual performance.

Tablets sold in the U.S. are said to contain 23 ingredients, including pig testicles, pig heart, pig embryo and pig adrenal gland, cortisone, ginseng and other botanicals.

Paralympic star Pistorius was charged with premeditated murder in the Feb. 14 shooting death of girlfriend Reeva Steenkamp. He says he shot her by accident.

‘Breathable’ nail polish finds an unexpected niche

Surprise solution.
Product developed as healthier alternative to traditional enamel is a hit with Muslim women

A manicure in progress at an Inglot shop in Warsaw, Poland. Since an Islamic scholar wrote that, in his view, Inglot’s O2M nail polish complied with Muslim law, the product has become very popular with Muslim women. CZAREK SOKOLOWSKI/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For Zaida Saleh, like for many observant Muslim women, manicures have long posed a religious problem.

With prayers five times a day, and a pre-prayer ritual that requires washing the hands and arms, traditional fingernail polish has been mostly off limits because it prevents water from making contact with the nails. A new “breathable” nail polish by a Polish company, Inglot, is changing that.

The company and some Muslims say the polish is the first of its kind because it lets air and moisture pass through to the nail. A craze has built up around it with Muslim women in recent months after an Islamic scholar in the United States tested its permeability and published an article saying that, in his view, it complies with Muslim law.

“It’s huge,” said Saleh, a 35-year-old who hadn’t polished her nails in many years but immediately went out and bought the product in five colours, including a bright pink, a burgundy and a mauve. “I am excited. I feel more feminine — and I just love it.”

The news of Inglot’s breathable polish has spread quickly from woman to woman and over the Internet.

The nail polish now stands as one of the final life achievements of Wojciech Inglot, a Polish chemist and entrepreneur who developed it to create what he billed as a healthier alternative to traditional nail enamels, which block the passage of moisture and oxygen to the nail. He died suddenly on Saturday at the age of 57 after suffering internal hemorrhaging.

Though the Muslim holy book, the Qur’an, does not specifically address the issue of nail polish, some Islamic scholars have said that water must touch the surface of the nail for the washing ritual to be done correctly. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

’Til space us do part: Tycoon to send married couple to Mars

It is a road trip that could test the best of marriages: Mars.

A tycoon announced plans Wednesday to send a middle-aged couple on a privately built spaceship to slingshot around the Red Planet and come back home, hopefully with their bodies and marriage in one piece after 501 days of no-escape togetherness in a cramped capsule.

Under the audacious but bare-bones plan, the spacecraft would blast off less than five years from now and pass within 160 kilometres of the Martian surface. The cost was not disclosed, but outsiders put it at more than $1 billion.

The team of space veterans behind the project hasn’t quite figured out the technical details of the rocket they will use or the capsule the husband-and-wife astronauts will live in during the 16-month voyage.

The private, not-for-profit project, called Inspiration Mars, will get initial money from NASA engineer-turned-multi-millionaire investment consultant Dennis Tito, the first space tourist. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A GATHERING OF EH?-LIST ACTORS

HE SAYS...
John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

This is the biggest week in the entertainment industry, what with the awards and the stars and the fashions and the national pride: Of course, I'm talking about the first-ever Canadian Screen Awards. What else could I mean?

Oh, right, that Oscars thing.

Hey, the Academy Awards are fine. It's one of the best opportunities to taunt people who are richer, handsomer and more talented than us, and then tsk-tsk their behaviour if they respond with anything but a sexy smile. Such fun.

But shouldn't we get behind Canada's own movies and TV shows just as much as we get behind Hollywood's? This year the Canadian Screen Awards bring the Geminis and Genies together, offering up the coveted Geminenie.

Land of the silver screen ...

I know, I know. You assume that because it's Canadian it must be staid and boring.

I know, I know. You assume that because it's Canadian it must be staid and boring. But I've seen an advanced screening of the awards and I can assure you that, while distinctly Canadian, it also has many familiar echoes of this year's Oscars:

Red carpet. I don't want to give away too much about the glitz and glamour, but David Cronenberg had everybody talking with a sheer blue outfit that left NOTHING to the imagination.

Comedy. The show's host, Martin Short, followed the edgy comedy of recent controversial hosts like Ricky Gervais and Seth MacFarlane, getting in sharp jabs about how he "doesn't care" for the new $20 bill — a sensitive topic (the bill has the Queen on it) that had the audience gasping. After several people called out "Too soon!" Short apologized but kept them smiling with a few digs at the Upper Canada rebellion of 1837, something everybody can appreciate.

Lifetime achievement. On the TV side of things, there was a long standing ovation for Zeddy the Zellers bear, recently retired after more than 25 years of television commercial performances that the Globe and Mail has called "stunning in their intertwined intimacy and ferocity." Kudos, Zeddy.

Big winners. I'm sworn to secrecy, but these were the nominees for Canadian film of the year:

- Argo. The story of a Toronto football team that wins the Canadian Football League trophy entirely because of American bravery and ingenuity.
- Beasts of the Northern Mild. A young girl must use all her optimism and imagination when nature flies out of whack and hits Toronto with seven centimetres of snow. With the city in chaos and her dad wailing in annoyance, she heads out in search of her mother, who is at a mysterious and distant shopping mall.
- Clark. Daniel Day-Lewis stars as the 16th prime minister of Canada in a country torn asunder by both access-to-information legislation and a gas tax. Will it survive? Day-Lewis has earned plaudits for his ability to capture Joe Clark's complete lack of charisma.
- L'eh Misérables. In this much-loved musical set against the backdrop of the 1995 referendum, French students from Quebec sing about their doomed fight against the federal government in such well-known numbers as On Our Own, One Vote More and Do You Hear the People Secede? Just like secession talk, it's loud, repetitive and goes on far too long.
- Zero Dark Thirty in Newfoundland. The thrilling story of a Canadian secret-ops team that kills its targets a half-hour earlier than other countries.

If you want to know who wins, you'll have to watch this Sunday.

Anything can happen, eh?

Sea dancing with friendly whales

The thought of swimming next to a 35-tonne humpback whale and its calf in the open ocean would fill anyone with dread, but for French navigator Maud Fontenoy, her mind was at ease.

This amazing image shows the 35-year-old marine activist and mother of one snorkelling beside the whales just off the island of Moorea in French Polynesia. METRO

Q and A

MAUD FONTENOY
French sailor and ocean conservation activist

Humpbacks are harmless

Fontenoy — the first woman to have crossed, by rowing, the North Atlantic Ocean and Pacific Ocean, and now a marine conservation activist for UNESCO — spoke to Metro about her swim.

Amazing photo of you with the whales. Were you not frightened of them?
I was afraid at first, but at the same time I knew straight away that these whales mean no harm and that I was in no danger.

I had to abandon my diving equipment on account of the bubbles produced by the breathing device. The whales are noise-sensitive and the bubbles would have disturbed them. Instead, I used a snorkelling mask and flippers.

How did this aid your efforts in marine conservation?
Each time we can show the beauty of nature, it's a way to make people aware of the similarity between humans and the ocean.

What everyday task can I do to help conserve our oceans?
You can choose to eat fish that aren't endangered. Also, you can help conserve water by using green detergents for your washing machines and avoiding overpackaged plastic items. METRO

Love will tear them apart

Comfort. Intimate play brings audiences into a disintegrating relationship

BACKSTAGE PASS
Simon Hiatt
saskatoon@metronews.ca

Despite the soothing title of the play they are presenting, very few people associated with the Know Tomorrow's Theatre Company's next production are likely to find themselves in the comfort zone.

Comfort tells the story of the relationship of Mike and Sarah, from meeting to breakup, but not in that order.

Heather Morrison, who plays Sarah, admits to some anxiousness about taking on the role.

"It will be very challenging, I'm nervous about it. Just the demands of my character, she has to seduce Matt's character the whole second act."

Morrison got the chance to work out some of those nerves during a short performance at a recently held Lugo event, but didn't take the easy way out as the scene selected required her to appear in her bra.

"Heather's the brave one," says her co-star Matt Burgess with a laugh. "I get to be seduced, that's not hard."

Perhaps the greatest challenge will come for audience members, who not only witness the relationship's end, but may feel like they are a part of the disintegration.

"That's the feeling we want people to have, we say this is a different experience for theatre," said Morrison.

"It's going to feel so intrusive and it's more demanding on the audience."

The level of intimacy is enhanced by the production's home. Comfort will be the first play ever staged at The Two Twenty building on Twentieth Street.

"The room is perfect; it looks like a loft apartment. So to have about 60 people in there, they're going to be really close to us." Burgess said.

Burgess and Morrison are accustomed to working together in close quarters. The two are long-time friends who were specifically sought out by the playwright, Gordon Portman, who was impressed with their chemistry during a play reading.

"Gordon kept saying he felt bad because he was supposed to be focusing on this other play but just kept thinking, 'I could have these people for my show,'" said Burgess.

Despite the play's emotionally-charged subject matter and long preparation process to make the show a reality (preparations began last September) the co-stars say it hasn't impacted their relationship in a negative way.

"We've been friends for years and we're all here to create art. He's a full-time student and I have a full-time job. We're not doing this for money. We're taking this on because we love what we do and we love this project," Morrison said.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Are Hemsworth and Cyrus done? Is Jones to blame?

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Hemsworth. If you're going to cheat on fiancée Miley Cyrus, don't do it at the Chateau Marmont. The Los Angeles hotel swarms daily with paparazzi and gossips; it's akin to taking out a billboard on I-95.
Here's the dirt: Hemsworth (a.k.a. Mr. Miley To-Be) was seen getting "hot and heavy" with January Jones at a pre-Oscar party over the weekend, per Star magazine. "It looked like they had some hot chemistry," an eyewitness told the rag. "They were all over each other — and they even kissed!" For her part, Cyrus showed up at the Elton John AIDS Foundation's viewing party sans date on Sunday and "was all over the place" (code for wasted). So what does this mean? I'm not sure. All I know is that Hemsworth is 23, while Cyrus is 20. Sounds like appropriate behaviour for people barely out of their teens.

Is Jennifer Lawrence complaining?

There's no rest in sight for Oscar winner Jennifer Lawrence, who got right back in Hunger Games mode the day after nabbing a best actress statue. After filming the next film in the successful franchise, she's set to re-team with Silver Linings Playbook co-star Bradley Cooper and director David O. Russell in an FBI drama before putting on blue body paint for the next X-Men movie, which begins shooting in May.

But all Lawrence wants to do is chill out. "I want to sit on my couch and drink and not change my pants for days," she tells E! News.

Another one bites the dust

Rachel McAdams and Michael Sheen have reportedly called it quits after more than two years of dating, according to Us Weekly. McAdams and Sheen first met while filming Woody Allen's Midnight in Paris together, though they didn't begin dating until later. "Michael and I didn't get together while we were filming Midnight in Paris, which I feel strongly about not doing when I'm working," McAdams told Stella magazine last year. "We became quite good friends, which I think is a great way to start." There was no word as to what led to their breakup. McAdams previously dated Ryan Gosling for two years after co-starring with him in The Notebook.

Star Wars star Carrie Fisher was reportedly hospitalized following a bizarre surprise appearance on a cruise ship, according to TMZ. "There was a medical incident related to Carrie Fisher's bipolar disorder," her rep says. "She went to hospital briefly to adjust her medication and is feeling much better now." Attendees at the show report that Fisher was meandering about on stage, rambling incoherently and singing off-key while her dog relieved itself next to her.

While the start of the new season is still several weeks away, there's no reason you can't leap ahead on the calendar — at least fashionably speaking — by adding a touch of spring style to your winter wear. LouLou style editor Claude Laframboise says spring pieces are great for layering during winter, like wearing sleeveless or short-sleeved tops under jackets or cardigans. Here are five ways to dial up the warmth in your cold-weather looks.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Spring into winter

Pretty prints

It wouldn't be spring without a little flower power, and fashionable florals will once again be in full bloom — with a stylized update, of course. "What's newer is the bigger-scale floral print as opposed to the small dainty one," said Laframboise.

Many prints are also drawing inspiration from digital imagery, making them appear pixelated, reminiscent of an abstract print, he noted.

Torn between sporting stripes or polka dots? No need to choose when you can wear different patterns together.

Laframboise said the mixing of prints was an evolution of colour blocking, which involves teaming distinctive bright hues within one ensemble.

Individuals can get a jump start on spring now by trying their hand at combining seemingly contrasting prints — keeping in mind that complementary colours are key.

Black and white

The classic colour pairing made a splash on the spring runways and may be among the easiest trends to work into your wardrobe.

"It's not about wearing a white shirt and black pants," said Laframboise. "It's really about wearing a striped top with solid pants, or a crisp white shirt, but with a patterned skirt that would be black and white."

Laframboise said the pairing also acts as a good base for bright hues, like teaming a black-and-white striped top with another on-trend item like electric blue or hot pink jeans.

Expect to see many of the season's key prints like stripes, polka dots and floral prints steeped in black and white, he said.

Laframboise suggested opting for a heavier-weight striped jersey dress now, or perhaps sporting a silky, polka-dotted top under a jacket and wear it standalone in spring.

Bright and light

Vibrant hues that coloured last year's spring fashions continue to be a strong theme heading into the warmer months. But no need to feel stuck on selecting one "it" colour. There's a full spectrum of bold shades to choose from.

"Some colours stick out," said Laframboise. There's a lot of hot pink, hot orange, turquoise and electric blue.

"But it's not one of those seasons where there's one colour you must get. It's all about colour as a whole."

An easy way to adopt the trend without sacrificing comfort is to consider opting for a brightly-coloured pair of jeans, said Laframboise.

Neon not your flavour? Laframboise said pastel hues — a tried and true springtime staple — are still in vogue, notably softer shades like pale blues and yellows.

Finishing touches

From a coral clutch to a checkered handbag, some of the hot colour and pattern trends in apparel are translating to accessories.

Mixed metal statement jewelry is emerging for spring, with everything from rhinestones to neon colours in the mix, said Laframboise.

Consider pairing your statement necklace with a T-shirt and jeans, or even overtop a collared shirt that has been fully buttoned up, he suggested.

"It's gone from being something dressy that you have at night to the other way around."

Flip your condo with style

Staging. Putting your home on the market? Get your condo ready for resale with some designer touches

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

We all know the rules when prepping your home for resale: de-clutter, remove personal items and clean. However there are more things you can do to make your home the talk of your building.

Now, you can always hire a home stager (usually recommended from the selling agent) to help, but as your trusted decorator expert, I'll share my own tricks of the trade to get your place appealing to a new buyer.

Buy accessories that compliment the space you are selling, and not what you think is trendy at the moment.

Putting your decor trademark on a space is not going to make buyers see the potential of owning it themselves.

For instance, if you live in a modern condo with concrete ceilings and floor-to-ceiling windows, choose a few strong industrial accents to play up those features: tall clear glass vases, a factory cart coffee table and vintage metal cappuccino maker will help give off that urban vice.

As harsh as this may be, paint away your personality with an updated neutral wall colour. Choose a colour that works with your floor and not necessarily your existing furniture in case you've already moved out and a potential buyer only has the walls and floors to see.

The right colour will ensure that without furnishings the space still looks co-ordinated and tied together. Trick: choose a paint colour that is two shades lighter than the colouring in the floors.

This will make the entire space visually flow, feel bigger and more tied together. Always sway toward cooler tones over warmer ones. Cool tones reflect more light and are less claustrophobic.

In an empty, open-concept space, use area carpets to define living areas. This way potential buyers can imagine a living, dining and office working for them in such an open area.

Choose your view to help with the sell. Install woven scrim shades to hide a bad view yet let light into the room. If you have a great city view then keep the shades up to show it off. Any window in a bathroom or bedroom should offer a privacy shade.

Lower your artwork. Buyers want spaces with high ceilings so by lowering your artwork the ceilings look taller. Simply lower everything two inches — ideally, the middle of your artwork should be 66 inches off the floor.

This is a great trick in condos and lower-level spaces that might only have standard height ceilings.

A new sink, faucet and trend-setting laminate countertop can take 10 years off the age of your kitchen. A chrome restaurant-inspired faucet and dark grey soapstone/concrete coloured counters are always good choices in urban spaces.

Don't invest in having a kitchen renovated for resale; offer the cost of a kitchen reno to reflect in the selling price and let the new homeowner customize the kitchen of their dreams.

Choose the largest closet and pimp it out. A front hall or main bedroom closet fitted with dark wood shelving inserts and fancy rods will always impress a potential buyer.

Install a battery-operated motion light inside the closet. Not only will your closet impress a potential buyer but it will make the closet feel organized and bright.

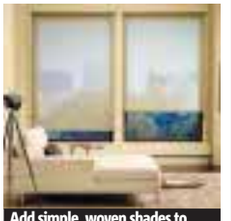
Don't leave a boot tray or a Remove Shoes sign at the front door. Once a potential buyer enters they should feel as if they already own it.

Placing personal messages and signs around make the buyer feel that you still have a presence in the space.

One trendy countertop appliance can set the tone for a fabulous lifestyle to potential buyers. Nespresso's Maestria Creama C Five Hundred Crema, $550, thebay.com.

Brighten up a dark closet interior or kitchen counter with an LED stick-up motion light. Sylvania Dot It Golden Dragon Motion Light, $15, homedepot.ca.

A modern faucet teamed with a trend-setting laminate counter top are inexpensive ways to update a kitchen. Ikea's Budskar Kitchen Faucet, $149, ikea.ca.



Add simple, woven shades to offer privacy or help diffuse an undesirable view without sacrificing natural light. Alustra Screen Shades, hunterdouglas.ca.

Meatball and Pasta Soup

This recipe serves six. RYAN SZULC, FROM ROSE REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVORITES (WHITECAP BOOKS)

ROSE REISMAN
for more, visit
rosereisman.com

This is a great soup for the family. It's a complete meal in a bowl. Try using ground chicken, turkey or pork instead of beef. Remember to add an extra tablespoon of bread crumbs if you're using chicken or turkey.

1. Meatballs: combine ground beef, bread crumbs, barbecue sauce, egg, garlic, basil and 2 tbsp of the Parmesan cheese. Form into 1-inch meatballs (you should have enough for about 24 meatballs). Lightly coat nonstick skillet with cooking spray and set over medium heat. Cook the meatballs for about 5 minutes, turning occasionally or until they are browned on all sides. Set aside.

2. To make the soup, lightly coat a large, nonstick pot with cooking spray. Add the oil and set over medium heat. Add the onion and garlic and sauté for 5 minutes or until just softened and browned. Stir in the green pepper and carrots and cook for 3 minutes. Stir in the stock, tomato sauce, tomato paste, chili powder and browned meatballs. Bring to a boil, and then reduce the heat to low and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes.

3. Stir in the pasta and simmer for 5 minutes or until the pasta is tender. Serve the soup in bowls, and garnish with remaining 1/4 cup Parmesan cheese. ROSE REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVORITES (WHITECAP BOOKS) BY ROSE REISMAN

All of the noodle but none of the carbs or fat

This chicken noodle soup recipe serves six. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 10 cups reduced-sodium chicken broth
- 2 cups shredded carrots
- 1 large stalk celery, coarsely chopped
- 3 tbsp minced fresh ginger
- 2 tbsp minced garlic
- Three 8-oz packages fettucine-style shirataki noodles, drained and well rinsed
- 4 cups shredded cooked skinless chicken breast
- 3 tbsp chopped fresh dill
- 1 tbsp lemon juice
- Salt and ground black pepper

The conventional wisdom of cutting carbs and calories generally has meant that pasta is a no-go.

But recently, a new noodle has challenged that thinking, giving dieters a fresh — albeit slightly different — way to have their pasta.

Shirataki noodles have attracted the attention of so many dieters of late. Their appeal? No carbs, no fat and almost no calories.

These slightly chewy noodles are made from a water-soluble fibre that comes from a type of sweet potato. Though they once were found only in Asian markets, they have begun showing up in most large supermarkets.

1. In Dutch oven over medium heat, bring broth to boil. Add carrots, celery, ginger and garlic. Cook, uncovered, until veggies are tender, 8 minutes.

2. Add shirataki and chicken. Simmer until noodles are just hot, 3 minutes. Stir in dill and lemon juice. Season with salt and pepper. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Curling. Four-time Brier champ Martin looks to win Canadian title in his hometown

Kevin Martin has won everything there is to win in curling, several times over in some cases.

The 46-year-old skip from Edmonton has Olympic gold and silver medals, four Canadian championships and a world championship on his resumé, plus 17 Grand Slam victories on the World Curling Tour.

So what drives him in the sport now?

"I still really enjoy a good tough game, win or lose," Martin said. "It's tough in games that don't mean a lot, but the big ones.... Those are the games that are fun for me still.

"As long as I really enjoy it, deep down really can't wait to play, I'll play. Once you don't feel like that, your days are done. I haven't got that yet."

The 2013 Tim Hortons Brier opens Saturday at Rexall Place. Martin's team out of Edmonton's Saville Centre represents the host province.

What's new for Martin is the opportunity to win a Canadian title in his hometown, having never played before at a Brier in Edmonton.

He did win the Olympic trials at Rexall Place in 2009 for the right to represent Canada at the 2010 Olympic Winter Games in Vancouver and Whistler.

Martin, third John Morris, second Marc Kennedy and lead Ben Hebert won gold in Vancouver. They'll be the darlings of this Brier as both the host team and the reigning Olympic champions.

Martin can also become the first skip to win five Canadian titles, surpassing Saskatchewan's Ernie Richardson and fellow Albertan Randy Ferbey at four.

Two of Martin's four previous Brier titles were won in Alberta, but both in Calgary.

"I think the Brier is going to be loud, a lot of fun and I think the crowd is going to be really into it," Martin said.

"It's Canada's biggest party if the Grey Cup's not. The two biggest parties in Canada are the Grey Cup and the Brier."

Alberta's Martin, defending champion Glenn Howard of Ontario and three-time winner Jeff Stoughton of Manitoba are the headliners of the 12-team field. THE CANADIAN PRESS

What's at stake?

The winner of the Brier final on March 10 will represent Canada at the Ford Men's World Championship in Victoria from March 30 to April 7.

Jets hope success on road travels home

Evander Kane helped the Winnipeg Jets to a 4-1 record on their recent five-game road trip, which included a 4-3 win over the New York Rangers on Tuesday. AL BELLO/GETTY IMAGES FILE

It would be understandable if Winnipeg Jets coach Claude Noel was a bit leery about returning home.

After the Jets wrapped up their longest road trip of the season with a 4-1 mark, Noel has to prepare the team to try to end a four-game losing skid at home.

"For some reason, I don't know what it is, there's usually a letdown (after a long road trip). That's just the way it is," Noel said Wednesday as his players had the day off.

The Jets (9-9-1) are 3-5 at the MTS Centre this season and begin a two-game homestand Thursday night against New Jersey (10-5-4) and Saturday afternoon versus Washington.

The streak is the longest home drought since the franchise moved to Winnipeg from Atlanta before last season.

"There's a lot of support here that we want to do well and we want to prove to (fans) that we're a good team," Noel said.

"Sometimes you might fear over-trying (at home) and that's a little bit different, but I don't think we fear that."

Through their first eight games at home last season, the Jets held a 5-3 record as they were buoyed by their raucous home crowd. The Jets have sold out every game since the NHL returned to Manitoba's capital. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hot hands

Andrew Ladd had three goals and two assists during the five-game road trip, while Evander Kane scored four goals and added two assists.

NHL. Chicago boasts 19-game point streak going into tonight's matchup

Record streak

Chicago set the NHL record for a season-opening points streak when it beat San Jose 2-1 on Friday night to make it 17 in a row.

While the streak goes on and the Chicago Blackhawks pile up points, the same words are repeated over and over.

It's about improving each game, they say, and how you finish the season. Trying to win every night is another common refrain.

The uniformity of the message is a testament to the mindset of the streaking Blackhawks, but it's also a vote of confidence for the gruff conductor of the best start in NHL history. While a balanced attack and two hot goaltenders get all the credit, coach Joel Quenneville's focus on Chicago's most glaring problems from last season has played a key role in the Blackhawks' record-breaking run.

"It's nice having some familiarity back behind the bench," forward Patrick Sharp said. "He knows how to push buttons and motivate. I feel like the team that returned from last year had a head start knowing what Q demands of us, how he wants us to play. It all goes hand in hand."

"We were hoping to get off to a good start," Quenneville said. "We looked at our schedule. We had a brutal schedule, when we play 10 out of 12 on the road. So we're thinking hopefully we can put ourselves in a position when we come home we'd be in a decent spot. But we didn't see this happening, for sure."

This run actually dates to last season in more ways than one. The Blackhawks have earned at least one point in 25 consecutive games overall, the third-longest point streak in NHL history.

It's the turnaround in a couple of Chicago's biggest weaknesses from last year that has fuelled the confidence.

"The areas that we talked about going into the season, things that we had to improve upon, I think are much better," Quenneville said. "Our penalty killing for sure. Our goals-against average was, we had hit a different note last year as far as the quantity of goals we were giving up, the type of goals we were giving up. I think we've shored up our defensive-zone coverage, that's helped us. Our power play is more effective."

NFL combine. League to probe if player was asked about sexual orientation

The NFL says it will look into whether questions asked of Colorado tight end Nick Kasa at the combine violated any laws or league policies banning employers from inquiring about a possible employee's sexual orientation.

Kasa told ESPN Radio in Denver that during interviews with team officials at the combine in Indianapolis: "(Teams) ask you, like, 'Do you have a girlfriend?' 'Are you married?' 'Do you like girls?'"

He did not identify who asked him such questions.

On Wednesday, Kasa said on the Dan Patrick Show he didn't think it "was really a serious question."

The NFL says it will look into Kasa's comments and that "any team or employee that inquires about impermissible subjects or makes an employment decision based on such factors is subject to league discipline."

DeMaurice Smith, the head of the NFL players association, said in a statement: "I hope that (the NFL) will seek out information as to what teams have engaged in this type of discrimination and we should then discuss appropriate discipline." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raptors cough one up to hobbled Cavs

Rookie Dion Waiters scored 23 points, Shaun Livingston added 15 and the Cleveland Cavaliers overcame a horrendous start and playing without injured All-Star Kyrie Irving for the second straight game, beating the Toronto Raptors 103-92 on Wednesday night.

The Cavs made only one of their first 15 shots, but recovered and finished February at 7-5, their first winning month since March 2010, when LeBron James was still around.

Wayne Ellington added 13 points and Luke Walton had seven rebounds and seven assists for the Cavs, who closed with a 10-2 run.

DeMar DeRozan scored 34 and Rudy Gay had 24 for the Raptors.

Irving sat out with a hyperextended right knee, an injury he sustained in practice. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
